

This Place is for the BIRDS

... and snakes and bats,
and state-significant natural communities of plants and animals that live here.

You're entering a special place. This portion of the Lands of the Watershed Center is PROTECTED—through a wildlife-focused conservation easement held by the Vermont Department of Fish and Wildlife—for its unique values as wildlife habitat.

It's home to rare, threatened, and endangered species, including Indiana bats, Eastern ratsnakes, and Peregrine falcons, as well as breeding amphibians and state-significant natural communities.

This area is OPEN to:

Walking

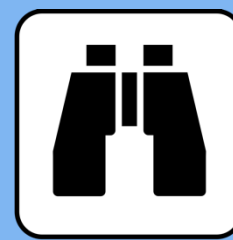

Skiing

Snowshoeing

Hunting

Wildlife Viewing

It is CLOSED to all other uses, including all motorized, mechanized, equestrian, and commercial recreation.

Welcome to this community-owned land.
Please pack out whatever you pack in.

For more information about The Watershed Center, or to become a member, please visit www.thewatershedcentervt.org.